Dear Terry,

10/23/95

I'd hoped that some of what I sent you could be of use. Glad it is.

The media was biased in the Simpson case, as was the judge.

If there is any discussion with the hardliners, ask them how the alleged evidence was not tainted and where the jury erred in finding reasonable doubt.

The real complaint should be addressed to both the police and the prosecution. They failed, not the jury.

The real danger is that all of this will contribute to the growing authoritarianism and to efforts to change the jury system.

It is more than racism, which it is.

Best,

Jack
